2 ZERO
HUNGER

What is the Overall Goal?

To end hunger, achieve food security/improved nutrition, and promote sustainable agriculture.

1

There are 7.6 billion people in the world...

2

...and ALL of them need to be fed!

Take This Into Perspective

Fact:

Poor nutrition causes nearly half (45%) of deaths in children under five.

Globally, one in nine people in the world today are undernourished (815 million).

66 million primary school-age children attend classes hungry across the developing world - 23 million in Africa alone.

Discussion Question 3

What did you notice about the children's bodies and their environment?

HUNGER → MALNUTRITION

Discussion Question 4

What is Malnutrition?

What is the Progress Now?

- The UN has placed gene-banks to preserve seed samples and plant's genetic material for future agricultural usage.
  - In 2016, 4.7 million seed and plant genetic samples were preserved in 602 gene-banks throughout 82 countries for future food and agricultural purposes.
- The UN aims to address the issue of malnutrition by:
  - Targeting foreign and domestic nations to invest in agriculture.
  - Increasing the income of small land-owning farmers.
  - Providing equal access to technology and land.
  - Creating a vibrant and productive agricultural sector.

But, There Will Always Be Setbacks

The cost of importing food is rising in 2017, driven by increased international demand for most consumable food.

The prices of a popular high-quality variety of wheat, with enough protein content, was 40% higher in July 2017 than a year ago.

An urban area in which it is difficult to buy affordable or good-quality fresh food.

23.5 million people live in food deserts in the U.S.

3 million people in NY live in communities without enough access to supermarkets.
