GENERATION Z
ON THE PATH TO GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP
GlobalScope is a series of innovative curriculum guides created by the University of California, Irvine’s School of Social Sciences for secondary school educators and students on the 21st Century forces and issues of globalization. The curriculum is designed to introduce high school students to the formal academic disciplines of anthropology, economics, geography, international studies, political science, and sociology. The GlobalScope publications allow us to share original University research and teachings with students and teachers beyond our immediate reach.

"Generation Z: On the Path to Global Citizenship" is being introduced to help students intellectually digest and apply their newly acquired global knowledge to their future plans. Unlike our other academically themed curriculum guides, the student is placed at the center of the subject matter by focusing on the concept of generations and examining the expectations and abilities of their own generation. The students will consider the impacts social media and contemporary social movements are having on our 21st century world.

As Generation Z, our students are members of a generation that will define the future of this nation and the world. Generation Z shares a uniquely global perspective. In our increasingly integrated and interdependent world their future will be shaped by global realities. Individuals living and learning in the digital world have the power to “design” their own futures.

Our students have real choices to make. Will they become Global Citizens? Will they go beyond their individual and national identities? Will their accomplishments impact a global population? What issue will they address through their (college level) academic studies and through their future career choices?

The final capstone project is a reflective project that requires the students to design their own future pathways. Each student will be asked to:

1. List and describe two global issues they consider most important.
2. Identify and describe a career path that will allow them to address their chosen global issue(s).
3. Conduct a college search to locate at least 2 colleges that offer majors/degrees that will prepare them for their chosen careers.

The final activity of the capstone project and the year-long course requires each student to share their future global paths with the class through oral presentations. Their presentations will be based on the three tiered process described above.

Unit I: Introducing Generation Z
Is it possible to paint a portrait of an entire generation?
Each generation has a million faces and a million voices.
What the voices say is not necessarily what the generation believes, and what it believes is not necessarily what it will act on. Its motives and desires are often hidden. It is a medley of good and evil, promise and threat, hope and despair. Like a straggling army, it has no clear beginning or end. And yet each generation has some features that are more significant than others; each has a quality as distinctive as ...

Generation Z Profile

How would you define your generation? Write some characteristics and traits that describe Generation Z.
GENERATION Z TRAITS

1. Less Focused: Gen Z lives in a world of continuous updates. Gen Z processes information faster than other generations thanks to apps like Snapchat and Vine. Thus their attention spans might be significantly lower than Millennials.

2. Better Multi-Taskers: Gen Z can quickly and efficiently shift between work and play, with multiple distractions going on in the background. They can work on multiple tasks at once.

3. Smart with Money: Gen-Z-ers are more thrifty than Millennials, having grown up in the twin shadows of the recession and student debt crisis. They are price and value conscious. 12% are already saving for retirement and 21% had a savings account before the age of 10. They plan to work during college, avoid personal debt at all costs, and save for retirement.

4. Early Starters: Many employers are predicting that more teens, between the ages of 16 and 18 will go straight into the workforce, opting out of the traditional route of higher education, and instead finishing school online, if at all. They are seeking to find the most efficient, non-traditional route to success.

5. Careful about Online Privacy: Gen Z-ers tend to prefer anonymous social media outlets like Secret and Whisper to more transparent ones like Facebook. They also use photo-sharing apps like SnapChat, where the media they send to friends disappears in a matter of a few seconds.

6. Diverse and Open-Minded: They are the most racially diverse generation in American history. They are extremely open-minded and fluid in the way they think about gender and sexuality.

7. Value Individuality: Gen Z is highly individualistic. They prize uniqueness over conformity. They place value on self-acceptance. They tend to enhance what they like about themselves rather than mask what they don’t.
8. Care More About Experiences: They place value on the experience, not the product. Going out to eat or going to a concert are examples of this.

9. Entrepreneurial: The newly developing high tech and highly networked world has resulted in an entire generation thinking and acting more entrepreneurially. Generation Z desires more independent work environments. 72% of teens say they want to start a business someday.

10. Genuine Desire to Make a Change: Community consciousness is a defining characteristic of Gen Z. Gen Z-ers are much more engaged with social issues and may be ever better at making a positive change. 49% of teens volunteer at least once a month and 20% plan on starting their own charity someday.
